Our Privacy Practices

Your Rights

When it comes to your health information, you have these rights.

a) You can get an electronic or paper copy of your health information.

- You can ask to see or get an electronic or paper copy of your medical records and other health information we have about you. Ask us how to do this.
- We will provide a copy or a summary of your medical records and other health information in our possession or under our control, usually within 30 days of your request. We may charge you a reasonable, cost-based fee.

b) You can ask to correct your medical records.

- You can ask us to correct the health information about you in the medical records in our possession or under our control that you think is incorrect or incomplete. Ask us how to do this.
- We may disagree that the information is incorrect. If we do, we'll tell you why in writing within 60 days following your request.

c) You can request confidential communication by us.

- You can ask us to contact you in a specific way (for example, home or office phone) or to send mail to a specific address to help keep our communications with you confidential.

- We'll do as you ask if your requests are reasonable.

d) You can request that we limit what health information we use or share.

- You can ask that we not use or share some or all your health information for treatment, payment, or our business operations. We are not required to agree to your request, and we may say "no." But if we agree, we'll abide by your request until you withdraw it.
- If you pay in full out-of-pocket for a service or health care item from us, you can tell us not to share information about that service or item with your health insurance plan, whether for payment or for our business operations. We'll not share that information with your health insurance plan, unless a law requires us to do so.

e) You can get a list of those with whom we've shared information about you.

- You can ask for a list (an "accounting") that shows to whom and why we've shared your health information for permitted public or private purposes during the last six years.
- Our list will include all our disclosures except those made for treatment, payment, or our business operations and those you asked us to make. We'll provide you with one free accounting each 12-month period, but we may charge you a reasonable, cost-based fee if you ask for additional accountings within those 12 months.

f) You can have a copy of this notice.

- You can ask for a paper copy of this notice at any time. We'll promptly give you a paper copy, even if you agreed to receive our notice electronically.

g) You can choose someone to act for you.

- If you have given someone medical power of attorney or if someone is your legal guardian, that person can exercise your rights and make the choices about your health information we describe in this notice.
- We'll make sure the person has the authority to act for you before we act on the person's requests or instructions.

h) You can file a complaint if you believe your rights are violated.

- If you believe we have violated your rights, you can file a complaint with us by contacting our Chief Executive Officer and Privacy Official using the address, phone number or email at the end of this notice.
- You can also or instead file a complaint with the Office for Civil Rights of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services by (i) sending a letter addressed to the Office for Civil Rights at 200 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201; (ii) calling 1 877-696-6775; or (iii) visiting www.hhs.gov/ocr/privacy/hipaa/complaints/.
- We will not retaliate in any way against you for filing a complaint.

Your Choices

For certain of your health information, you can tell us your choices about what we share.

If you have a clear preference for how we share your health information in the situations described below, talk to us. Tell us what you want us to do. We'll follow your instructions if your requests are reasonable.

a) In the following situations, you have the right to tell us whether we may:

- Share your health information with your family, close friends, or others involved in your care
- Share information about you in a disaster relief situation
- Include information about you in our facility directory

If you are not able to tell us your preference—if, for example, you're unconscious—we may share your information if we believe that is in your best interest. We may also share your information if needed to lessen a serious and imminent threat to the health or safety of you or others.

b) We never use or share your information for marketing, nor do we ever sell your information, unless you give us written permission to do so:

Our Permitted Uses and Disclosures

Here is how we're permitted to use and share your health information.

a) To treat you and others: We're permitted to use and share your health information with health care professionals who are treating you or treating others when access to your health information may assist in that treatment.

Example: We may share the results of the sleep study we conduct on you with a physician to interpret the results and with the physician who referred you to us for the sleep study.

b) To bill for our services: We're permitted to use and share your health information to bill and get payment from your health insurance plan or others who may be responsible for paying for part or all the services we have provided to you.

Example: We may give information about our treatment of you to your health insurance plan so we may receive payment for the services we provided to you.

c) To operate our business: We're permitted to use and share your health information to improve the quality of our services, contact you when necessary or appropriate, and otherwise operate our business.

Example: We may use and disclose information about you to control and enhance our quality and improve our services.
